

Cosmogolem is coming to Entebbe

A giant who empowers children

What?

The CosmoGolem is a wooden giant created by Belgian artist Koen Vanmechelen. The project focuses on the empowerment of children and their rights all over the world. So far, over 45 CosmoGolems have been built around the globe. In cooperation with ViaVia the CosmoGolem family is expanding to Entebbe soon!

How?

The CosmoGolem is always constructed with the help of children, under the supervision of the artist. Where the giant stands, children gather to communicate, philosophize, create and share in whatever form. They can make artworks and deposit them through a hatch in the heart of the CosmoGolem.

Workshops are set up in the vicinity of the Golem to stimulate children to express their thoughts and emotions. During these workshops, children are taught about different perspectives on reality, stimulating their listening and reasoning skills.

Why?

Himself always silent, this giant protector empowers children by helping them find their own voice and identity. Half of Uganda's children experience multidimensional poverty, meaning they lack access to health care, education, a family life, clean and safe drinking water, housing and nutritious food. These circumstances make that children don't get a chance to be children.

The CosmoGolem shows children that they can express themselves through poetry, stories, dance and visual arts. By doing so, children can share feelings they find difficult to express otherwise and learn how to dream about their future.

By supporting the CosmoGolem, ViaVia Entebbe contributes to its mission of connecting communities worldwide and encourages children from the neighbourhood to dream and create.
